Romulus may lose land for rest stop along I-94

With Wayne County taking land in its southern section, Romulus faces the possibility of losing land in its northern section to the Michigan Highway Department

Highway Department officials last week said they intend to build a more than 30 acre rest stop on the north side of the I-94 freeway midway between Merriman and Wayne Roads.

"We had no knowledge of this until some of our people saw highway department employes surveying the land a few weeks ago," said Mayor Hyle Carmichael. "We got in touch with State Rep. Edward Mahalak (D-38th District) and he arranged the meeting."

At the meeting the highway officials explained the project, stating that there is a need for a rest area along the I-94

The officials said that the project should be no surprise to Romulus, since the highway department had advertised its intention in a newspaper last August

"I don't know what newspaper they're talking about," said themayor, "but I know I didn't see it.
"I think they should have notified us, out of courtesy.

"I see no need for a rest area 20 miles outside of Detroit, but that's what they say they want," said Carmichael. "If they go through with the plan, they'll be taking valuable land from the city's tax base, and will be creating a nuisance.'

Carmichael said the land, located near where Wick Road almost meets the expressway, is important for the city's

"Once we get water, sewers and paving along that road (Wick), we'll see the area develop," the mayor said. "They want to take more than 30 acres out of the heart of it."

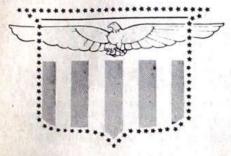

In addition to the loss of land, the mayor said that residents of the area, already plagued by jet fly-over's and trains, would get the added nuisance of trucks running through

"Have you ever heard those things whine when they're accelerating?" asked the mayor. "It's nerve wracking

"And, on top of it, they plan to put the stop just before an incline in the expressway, meaning that those trucks leaving it would never get in gear. I feel sorry for the people who

Despite worrying about problems which might occur with the construction of a rest stop, the mayor seemed confident that the plan wouldn't reach fruition.

"We left with the feeling that they wouldn't shove it down our throats." said Carmichael

"We're told now we have to wait until Feb. 15 before they can make any decisions."

Peter O'Rourke, the city's labor attorney, said he hadn't received official word of the charges. He said: "The council has met with the union, and it's waiting for a report from the auditors on the matter.

"I don't see anything to be gained by this action.

O'Rourke said that the council had informed the union of the delay when it found that the city's auditors would have an efficiency study of job classifications by mid-February.

"They told Sacharczyk last week that they were waiting for the report," O'Rourke said. "I expect that as soon as the report's here, we should resolve the matter.

"I'm surprised at the complaint."

Sacharczyk was careful to point out that the charges were being filed more because of council action concerning the matter than because of administration action.

Bobby, Sheila stress difference is goodness

days can serve as reminders of the different types of people who seem to want to do good for their fellow citizens.

One-the remembrance of the more than 11/2 million Christmas cards that flowed in from around the world to Bobby Miller two years ago - is indicative of the type of "good will toward all" that is so needed in today's troubled nations.

The other - the apparent friendliness and helpfulness of an unknown man to an Inkster family that resulted in the disappearance for four days of their eight-year-old daughter — serves to tell us to be suspicious of overly friendly strangers.

We never met Bobby Miller or his family personally, but we'll never forget the little boy whose request for a couple of Christmas cards two years ago spurred so many people, including President Nixon, to send him some greetings of the season.

Some even opened their pocketbooks to the tune of almost $15,000 to help Bobby's family pay some of the boy's bills.

Apparently others won't forget him either. Off and on during the past two years, we have received inquiries from people in various parts of the country as to whether or not he was still alive.

In explaining to people the process by which news stories are spread to the various news media throughout the world by the wire services, we frequently have referred to

We would tell how a request by a boy, then not quite seven years old and the victim of a fatal muscular disease, could be forwarded to a wire service-as Bobby's story was to the Associated Press — and how the AP then spread the story by way of its teletype machines to every member paper in the United States and many others in foreign in referring to the story, we have been surprised by the number of people — both adults and children — who needed no other identification than Bobby's name to remember who he was.

The reasons we're saying all this is because his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller, said recently that Bobby always remembered those cards. That so many people in the world took the time to perk up the spirits of a little boy doomed to die so young should give all of them a feeling of comfort despite Bobby's leaving us for good.

However, we also must remember that "all that glitters is not gold" even when human friendliness is involved.

We can't imagine there being many parents of young children who weren't wishing for the safe return of eight-year-old Sheila Quick to her parents after her disappearance last

Since such a disappearance so frequently results in the discovery of the child's body, it was with a sigh of relief and thanks for the answering of everyone's prayers that we hears Sunday morning of her safe return.

And to think it all came about after the Quick family had come to like their new found acquaintance, a man who had helped them, treated them so kindly during the previous

However, while others may sit back and say such a thing couldn't happen to them, it actually could take place in any one of our families with chilren of almost any age.

It could even happen to us as adults. After all, there could be a time - maybe on a dark road with a car having broken down — that any of us could need help. Who knows who might come along to aid and befriend us?

Would it be one of those many persons like they who befriended Bobby Miller or could it be one of the few others who are about to cause us some grief?

State attendance tallied

Opening another avenue by which our readers can be more informed about their state government, we are beginning today a new log of activites of local legislators in Using information taken from the official records of the house and Senate, we will publish on a regular basis the attendance of local lawmakers at formal sessions of the Michigan legislature.

We're happy to report initially that our six Western Wayne County legislators were nearly perfect in attendance at the five sessions held in January. Senators William Faust and David

Plawecki and representatives Tom Brown,

William Keith and John Markes were present and on time for the sessions held Jan. 10-11

Rep. Edward E. Mahalak, while on time and present for the sessions of Jan. 10, 29 and 31, was late for the Jan. 11 session and was excused from the Jan. 30 House gathering.

We feel our legislators will continue the good attendance since it will help them express the voice of the more than 200,000 persons in Western Wayne County in state government.

Once legislative voting on matters of substance resumes in Lansing, we will renew regular publication of the votes of our local

Full labeling is worthy

A story of national importance and significance received short shrift in the media around Jan. 17 because of the logiam preceding the signing Jan. 27 of the cease-fire in Vietnam.

It might have been said its "timing" was bad, at a time when the nation's attention and consciousness were immersed in the hopes of a belated peace.

This was the announcement by the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) of a historic breakthrough on informing Americans what they are eating through a label breakdown of the food's ingredients.

While to some this might seem unimportant and superfluous, it is, in fact, highly important in an age when medical research has discovered many additives in foods are highly suspect of being responsible for causing diseases, among them diabetes, cancer, high blood pressure and heart disease

Other reasons also exist, too, for requiring that canners and packers let the consumer know just what is in their products, such as the amount of preservatives, whose only purpose is to slow spoilage, and what foods have been fortified by extra nutrients.

While the effective date of the FDA regulations necessarily is delayed to as not to cause economic hardship, consumers in 1974 will know by reading labels or in advertising the amount of calories, proteins, carbohydrates, fats, and seven important vitamins are in each serving for which a nutrition claim is made.

In addition to the usual run of foods, this labeling also will affect bottlers of diet drinks and others such as the bakers of enriched bread and flour, also fortified milk and fruit

Importance of the regulations is the safeguard provided in one regulation which says that all foods must state the cholesteral and fat content something which recovering heart disease patients must watch

Another regulation addresses itself to setting standards for multiple vitamins and minerals, such as governing both their quality and quantity and, importantly, reclassifying extra potent combinations, which could be harmful, as drugs. In recent years, overdoses of some vitamins have proved harmful.

Artifical flavors, too, are being more closely regulated. Older persons will remember that the use of one artificial flavor, a substitute for real vanilla, was made from a coal tar derivative and had extensive use until it became a prime cancer suspect.

This complete labeling of food products already has at least one firm which has been complying voluntarily. This is the California Packing Company which uses the Del Monte label. It already lists the calories, protein, carbohydrates, fats and important vitamins

Medical doctors for a long time have told patients to use ordinary table sugar sparingly. Sugar used indiscriminately causes obesity, heart attacks, diabetes, dental decay, duodenal ulcers, gout and dermatis. Labels should list its presence in

The FDA made a concession to the firms that can most of our foods. It backed away from the proposal that 80 per cent of a product contain at least 80 per cent of the nutrients labeled. Instead, the FDA allows averaging of indigenous or naturally occuring nutrients with a 20 per cent variation.

It's important, too, that consumers know that not all frozen desserts are ice cream and now they can't be labeled "ice cream." Just so, the false claims that that some foods aid diets will be abolished.

Not everyone in the food packing and processing industry is going to like the full labeling requirements, but in a modern age the consumers are entitled to know the full truth about the products they eat and not to be subjected to false, unproved claims

School financing is challenge

Solving Michigan's school financing problem is one of the greatest challenges facing the new 1973 session of the Legislature

It is a two-pronged problem. First, there is the shaky financial condition of many school districts. Just as pressing is the Michigan Supreme Court decision that the present method of financing school operations is unconstitutional

This mandates a new approach to paying the costs of running local schools.

Several possible solutions are being weighed. One proposal before the House of Representatives would be a constitutional amendment setting up a statewide property tax system.

Another proposal introduced in the Senate uses the "guaranteed tax yield" principle of state school aid distribution. This proposal would also grant the school districts the right to levy an income tax.

Much opposition has been received during Senate hearings on the second proposal. Some educators, who have studied the proposal, believe it is founded on unconstitutional grounds, that it will not provide adequate funding for public schools or would eliminate the disparity between school districts in per pupil expenditures.

Because of the opposition to this bill, it is now in the process of being rewritten. When it is reintroduced, the bill's author, Sen. Gilbert E. Bursley (R-Ann Arbor) hopes that it will provide a sound educational base for all students, provide for equity between rich and poor districts, require no change in state taxes, require no time consuming constitutional amendment, retain maximum local control and permit more extensive programs in districts willing to tax themselves more heavily.

However, in the House a constitutional amendment is being favored that would place a 13-mill ceiling on property taxes for school support. The would be collected by the state and distributed evenly to districts throughout Michigan.

The average millage paid by taxpayers is 26 mills, meaning an average reduction of 13 mills. Individuals would pay the additional support for schools through a 1.8 per cent increase in the state income tax, raising Michigan's tax to 5.7 per cent. Business would cover the reduction in property tax through a new value-added tax, which is basically a

The plan would include specific tax breaks for renters and provisions for school districts in debt and for those that want a higher standard of education. It would also contain language guaranteeing taxpayers the right of local control over their

It is hoped that this plan or a variation of it can be placed before voters in a special election this spring so that it could be implemented for the 1973-74 school year.

Legislative leaders have given top priority to a speedy solution to the troubles of school financing. Without an answer to the dilemma, many of the districts will have to drastically reduce educational

Gun-crime situation needs positive acts

A gun owner who sees an anti-gun cartoon is seldom bothered by it, but when an article about the foremost antigun advocate is on the same page of the same newspaper, that's a bit much

Senator (Philip A.) Hart not only wants licensing and registration of every firearm in America, he wants confiscation of every firearm.

This man along with Ramsey Clark, Ted Kennedy, Birch Bayh to name a few - are the root cause of crime in our country today. The liberals in our government have given the country over to the radicals and it behooves the conservative side to take it back.

First, bring back capital punishment, put the legal age back to 21 years, cut plea bargaining in our courts to a minimum, make carrying a firearm illegally a jail offense. This would be a start.

receiver thereof is a die casting of zinc alloy or any MEA disappointed by education plan

To the editor:

While the Michigan Education Association is encouraged by much of the Governor's message on education ... we are disappointed that he made no specific suggestions to improve the lot of current and future retired teachers.

The deficiencies in the retirement plan are well-known. To merely request the Legislature recommend improvement and changes does nothing for those retirees who need assistance right now. Many of them are existing on incomes either at, or below, the poverty level. Instead of further study which simply means 'delayed justice'...we badly need executive leadership.

Many of the Governor's prinicipal proposals are sound and consistent with long-standing MEA positions.

MEA spokesmen testified in recent weeks in favor of an 'equal yield formula.' While we suggested it be phased-in over two years, instead of the three years proposed by the Governor, we endorse the concept. Since the idea is included in the Senate Education Committee's proposal, and also in a bill introduced by several prominent Democrats, it will hopefully become the basis for the state aid bill for 1973-74.

MEA joins the Governor in urging speedy enactment of the formula, in order to expedite the planning efforts of local school districts."

Daily Eagle Washington Bureau chief

"Saturday night specials." The legislation was approved by the Senate, but never got through the House.

The major objection voiced against it was that the bill did not fully define the type of cheap handguns it sought to take off the market and could have banned short-barreled revolvers and large-frame single action models owned by law abiding citizens.

Dingell's bill would meet that objection by making it unlawful for any licensed manufacturer, importer or dealer "to sell or deliver any handgun if the frame or melting temperature of less than 800 degrees fahrenheit." The ready salability of "Saturday night specials" to casual, criminal or youthful Michigan buyers, the congressman said, results from their low price compared to a well made weapon. Making the trame or receiver of die cast zinc alloy can be done at "one-twentieth the cost of conventional forgings or investment castings of steel or hightensile alloys," Dingell explained in a statement introduced in the Congressional Record.

The frame usually is the most expensive component of a handgun.

A "Saturday night special" is unreliable and can come apart when used because zinc alloy has only a margin durability, Dingell pointed

In a news conference Jan. 31, President Nixon called for the elimination of "Saturday night specials," but said any law on the subject should contain a precise definition to avoid impinging on the rights of law abiding citizens who purchase and own revolvers and pistols for legitimate use.

Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Michigan) has taken a more sweeping view. He has introduced a bill to ban private ownership of all revolvers and pistols- the expensive, well made ones as well as the "Saturday night specials". Such a ban, similar to the one followed in Britain, would offer the greatest measure of safety for all citizens, Hart believes.

He has conceded, however, that his approach probably has little chance of gaining congressional approval at this time. Dingell's more limited approach just might.

Dancing is as much a part of Russia as caviar! Whether it is a classical Bolshoi Ballet or an energetic, foot-stomping, whirling-through-the-air type of Siberian folk dance, dan-cing and going to the theatre to watch performers dance has always been a part of Russian culture.

The thought of such energetic dancing makes one thirsty for a refreshing drink. Russian Tea Punch is made with a Russian favorite - tea. For modern ease of preparation, instant tea is used with Orange Flavor Tang Instant Breakfast Drink and cinnamon. Serve hot with triangular clove-studded lemon slices. The fruit flavor of the hot tea punch goes well with most desserts. It's an especially nice companiment for Dream Cake with Cherries Jubilee, a nice touch for Washington's Birth-day. Dream Cake is a delightful recipe - made by combining a package of cake mix with an envelope of Dream Whip Whipped Topping Mix, 4 eggs, and a cup of water. The light and delicious cake that results has a texture

All that needs to be done at serving time is to heat the Cherries Jubilee for the cake and stir boiling water into the tea punch mixture — a bit of elegance and a lot of convenience for the perfect and relaxed hostess.

These consist of two solutions, usually applied separately. While these bleaches are much the same, there are some minor but important differences among the brands. It is vital, therefore, that the directions on the container be followed to the letter, especially in regard to the elapsed time between applications of the two solutions and the manner in which all traces of the bleach must be rinsed off after the operation is completed.

If you decided to bleach, the materials must be applied to the entire surface, not merely to the one or two areas where color still remains. This will insure the same degree of whiteness over the full sur-

Bleaching has another purpose other than the removal of color. Some wood finishers use it every time they refinish an object, maintaining that the resulting smooth, even tone enables a new coat of stain to "take" without danger of a multicolored effect. And bleaching is an essential step in obtaining certain blond and novelty finishes.

Most of the time, a bleach will raise the grain of the wood, making it necessary to sand the wood thoroughly before proceeding with the finishing job.

The bleach solutions are strong chemicals and must be used with great care. You will need rubber gloves and old clothes that cover up as much of your arms and body as possible. If you are not going to have a deep respect for the strength of the product, better not use it. And if you should accidentally spill even a drop on your skin, stop what you are doing instantly and wash the area thoroughly with

As with most chemicals, never pour the bleach into anything made of metal. While there are specially treated metal cans that will withstand the chemicals, the metal containers you have around the house will not do

Many parents are faced with making one bedroom do for two active youngsters, who need space for studying as well as play and storage.

A solution is to build in a group of desks, bookshelves, drawers and cabinets on one wall. The desk is best under a window to take advantage of sunlight.

Counter-style desks with shallow storage underneath and hinged tops keep pencils, papers and other supplies handy Tall floor-to-ceiling cabinets, and shelves flanking the desk counter also can serve as headboards for twin bed, one along each wall. This leaves open space in the center for

SKELETAL STUDIES - "String Bean" is the name given to a model skeleton which is being used in Mrs. Evelyn Larabell's fifth and sixth grade class at West Willow Elementary School. The skeleton, which is made of durable plastic but cast from real bones, was

Students to study biology

The fifth and sixth grade students in Mrs. Evelyn Larabelle's class at West Willow Elementary School have been undertaking a pair of biological projects.

The students have been probing the world of microscopic life and investigating the skeletal system.

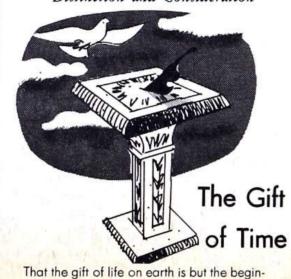

In the microscopic studies the students observed a starfish donated by Richard White and a crayfish and also dissected a crayfish and grasshopper.

Student teacher Glen Erickson aided the students in their investigations.

Several molds, including the orange mold which is the basis for penicillin, were cultered by Brett Curts.

With the help of a bake sale and a candy sale the students earned the money to purchase a durable plastic skeleton which serves as a model for their studies.

Belleville Players stage 'Gazebo'

By DOROTHY FLORIAN

Several years ago, a small group of Belleville residents with nothing more than a bond of wanting to do something for the community — in the theatrical sense — began to talk about the formation of an adult theater group.

It was not until the summer of 1971 that they actually jumped in feet first. With the help of the Van Buren Township Recreation Association, the Belleville Community Players came up with its first production, "Rest Assured.

Once the theater bug hit, "Never Too Late," "Portrait of Jenny" and "Pillow Talk."

The next production is a mystery-comedy "The Gazebo" to be presented March 2, 9 and 10.

Residents do not need previous theatrical experience to be an asset to this organization. The Players are common "everyday" folk who love a challenge and have a great sense of community involvement and feel the theater solves both

Take someone who can swing a mean hammer, another who can stroke a colorful paintbrush, another who can handle a fast comb, then someone who can toss a dab of make-up - add others who think charades are great and presto! - you have a play. Well, we all know it takes a bit more work than that. But when the play is over and the stage is struck, itis the fun that is remembered.

Dedication - that is the key to the success of The Players. Take a few people who aren't bothered by additional work add that dedication and feeling of community involvement, and Belleville is given a little bit of Broadway.

Her theatrical experience started with chorus work in the high school musicals at the University. Becky was the rehearsal pianist for many musicals, among them "L'il Abner" and "Babes in Abner" and "Babes in Toyland," and such operas as "Rigoletto," "Oedipus Rex" and "Falstaff."

Also at the university, she sang in "Oklahoma" and "Barbers of Seville," and danced in "Amahl and the Night Visitors". She also danced in the Dearborn Civic Theatre's production, "Most Happy Fella.'

'The Gazebo" is a two-act mystery-comedy about Elliotts' attempts to thwart a blackmail attempt.

Performances will be on March 2, 9 and 10 at the Belleville High School Auditorium. Curtain goes up at 8:30 and tickets, on sale soon, are $1.50.

BY HAROLD REDISKE, DIRECTOR

George Washington — Feb. 22, 1732 — Dec. 14, 1799 ... A truly great man ... A man of character, integrity, honor and truth ... Truth, and nothing but the truth was his creed throughout his lifetime ... Without truth, there could be no honor. Without honor there could be no character.

there could be no character.

Vicious, untrue rumors vilified Washington throughout his political career ... He shrugged them off but on one occasion at least, he counter-attacked his accusers and defied any man on earth to prove him unworthy of public trust. In characteristically human resentment, he expressed a preference to be in his grave than be President ... But the truth came out as it always does.

He well deserves the eulogy expressed by Henry Lee — "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." Lincoln so idolized Washington that he once said, "To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the

A LONG NIGHT — Romulus' 6-5 junior forward Johnny Long (50) put on a one-man show Friday night against visiting Inkster and poured in 25 of his team's 66 points. But the supporting cast failed to come through and Long's stellar performance was wasted as the Eagles were jolted 67-66. The loss cut a 28-game home winning streak.

Inkster upsets Romulus

Romulus learned the hard way that a basketball game isn't over until the final buzzer

And it was arch-rival, Inkster, who taught Coach Dave Court's Eagles that important lesson.

Playing sporadically Romulus blew a 10-point third quarter lead and lost to Coach George Thompson Jr.'s Vikings 67-66 in a nonleague game which lured a capacity crowd at Romulus High Friday night.

Many fans were turned back because of the sellout crowd. "I can't say enough about our team's performance,' Thompson after the "these fellows were great. I know I have criticized their erratic performance, but this is one night where they just wouldn't quit. It's a

"And I hope this will give us the confidence we need in the stretch," Thompson added. "When you beat a bigger and more experienced ball club you just have to be elated - and that's what our boys did. It's a real victory for us."

The Inkster victory also snapped Romulus' 28-game winning streak on the home court.

I'm confident that we will have the courage to come back as we did when we lost to them over there last year,' said Court, "I'm not ashamed of our boys. I am proud of them. We still have a 13-2 record and there's a lot of games still to go.

"But let me say that Inkster did an excellent job, and I want to congratulate them on their victory," Court added.

A see-sawing affair all the way, Romulus gained the upper hand at the end of the first period 14-10, only to have the margin dissipate at the half, 28-26. Then, the Eagles came back to take the lead 53-48 in the third but a hotshooting Joe Brown who teamed with Tony Kirkpatrick early in the fourth period played havoc on the Eagles and brought Inkster to life.

and Kirkpatrick riddled off eight points between them to dissolve Romulus' 55-48 lead to take the lead 56-55 midway in the final stanza. A tapin by Romulus' 6-9 center Ron Bostick moved the Eagles within one point again after Brown sank two consecutive long shots.

With the score 60-59, Romulus called for a time out with 2:43 left on the clock. When play resumed Inkster's

Ralph Fitts put in an underthe-basket shot which drew immediate response from Romulus' Tony Owens, making it a 62-61 ball game.

Then Inkster's Greg Nero and Romulus Johnny Long exchanged baskets but Nero came back to widen the margin at 66-63. Long then sank two free throws to draw

Bostick was awarded two free throws that could have turned the game around. But he made the first and when a double violation occurred, the ball went to the center court for a jump ball and Inkster got

Assembly line

General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors have nothing on sixth grade students at Mt. Pleasant Elementary School when it comes to assembly lines. They have foremen for their "shifts," production workers, painters, inspectors, maintenance workers, set-up men, skilled tradesmen and a "plant" superintendent for the Ram Charger Assembly

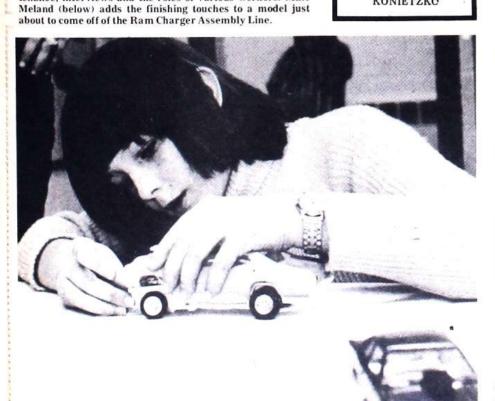

The class project, set up by sixth grade teachers, Mrs. Diane Golka, Mrs. Donna Allen, and student teacher, John Boyles, is part of a classroom project giving students insight into the working world of adults while at the same time, they put their classroom studies to practical use. The assembly line is at work on models donated by a toy manufac-

IMPORTANT JOBS — Joe Pomerico (above) is intent on his job as engine installer on the assembly line set up in the sixth grade classroom at Mt. Pleasant School in Romulus. The importance of doing a reliable job on the model is just a part of the entire project for the sixth graders. They learn about applying for jobs, from filling out forms to appearance, job descriptions, the role of newspapers, banking, maintenance, interviews and the roles of various workers. Mike

Students get insight into adult work world

Inspectors

Joey Scamp (above) takes his job as production line inspector very seriously as he checks out a model just off the Ram Charger line at Mt. Pleasant School. Randy Jernigan (from left) installs the times on a case it reaches. the tires on a car as it reaches him on the line and plant "superintendent" Randy Halvin, has the job as "big boss" of the classroom project. Tire installer Jernigan is so intent on doing a good job, he doesn't even notice "big boss" Halvin watching him.

THEIR NEWS IS GOOD NEWS - The Career Chronicle at Mt. Pleasant School, Romulus, plays an important role in the overall theme of studies on the realistic adult world of employment. "Job hunters" can scan their pages for possible work, shoppers just what is going on read the news pages. The busy staff includes, Pauline Stevens, reporter; Vicki Wilks, printer; Tom Witherow, photographer, and Suzanne Mimnaugh, reporter. All are sixth graders.

FIRST AID STATION - "Accidents" happen on any assembly line and the Ram Charger line is no exception. The worker with pseudo injuries is Mike Lilly, and the "nurses" attending to him are (from the left) Ruth Glazier, Sandra Johnson and Rhoda Stokeley. The Mt. Pleasant sixth graders are learning that there are many aspects to a production operation, in and out of the classroom.

The "nurses" applied for their jobs, were interviewed and may be placed on probation just as they would be in the adult working world.
